

THE NEW ATLANTIS

A JOURNAL OF TECHNOLOGY & SOCIETY

NUMBER 31 ~ SPRING 2011

PLACE AND PLACELESSNESS IN AMERICA

GPS and the End of the Road 4

Ari N. Schulman on the transformation of travel and discovery

SYMPOSIUM:

What 'Place' Means to Us Today 33

– Wilfred M. McClay on the particularities of place 40

– Christine Rosen on the new meaning of mobility 46

– Gary Toth on place-conscious transportation policy 54

– Brian Brown on the rise of localist politics 61

– Justin Race on why home is where the frog is

ESSAYS:

Could Terrorists Exploit Synthetic Biology? 69

Jonathan B. Tucker on the potential risks of "de-skilling" bioengineering

Transitional Humanity 82

Gilbert Meilaender on the longing to defeat mortality and transcend embodiment

Psychology's Magician 93

Algis Valiunas on the life and career of Carl Jung, mystic scientist of the mind

REVIEWS & RECONSIDERATIONS:

Why Bother with Marshall McLuhan? 123

Alan Jacobs on the man, the medium, and his message

The Challenge of Regulating Objectively 136

Jonathan H. Adler on cost-benefit analysis and the precautionary principle

Philosophy Is Here to Stay 145

Benjamin Storey takes on David Brooks's social scientism

The Unmanning of America 153

Rita Koganzon on the rise of women and the fall of men
