

THE NEW ATLANTIS

A JOURNAL OF TECHNOLOGY & SOCIETY

NUMBER 56 ~ SUMMER/FALL 2018

CORRESPONDENCE:

- Why Do We Think We Are Disenchanted? 3

THE SPACE RENAISSANCE

- Moon Direct 14

Robert Zubrin offers a purpose-driven plan to open the lunar frontier

- The Return of the Space Visionaries 48

Rand Simberg on how space tycoons are bringing back the dream of truly settling the “high frontier”—and how policy can catch up

- Lost on Mars 69

Micah Meadowcroft on why space colonization will disappoint you

ESSAYS:

- How Facebook Deforms Us 82

L. M. Sacasas on the too-savvy idea that strengthening our social fabric can fix the platform that’s destroying it

- What Happened to Bioethics? 92

Yuval Levin on why biomedical research doesn’t roil national politics anymore—and the thin hope offered by the last time it did

- Jonas Salk, the People’s Scientist 99

Algis Valiunas on how the man who vanquished polio won the public’s love but never the respect of his peers

- Why Data Is Never Raw 129

Nick Barrowman on the seductive myth of information free of human judgment

- Time to Log Off 136

Ian Marcus Corbin on being online and recognizing inhumane arrangements for what they are
