

THE NEW ATLANTIS

A JOURNAL OF TECHNOLOGY & SOCIETY

NUMBER 58 ~ SPRING 2019

ESSAYS:

- After Technopoly 3
Alan Jacobs on why getting beyond rationalism requires the return of myth
- Our Uneasy Tranquility 15
Heather Zeiger asks whether the rising use of anti-anxiety pills should have us worried
- Why Science Can't Break the GMO Stalemate 28
Tess Doezema argues that studies won't settle a debate about technocracy itself
- Can Chess Survive Artificial Intelligence? 37
Yoni Wilkenfeld on how computers take the error out of human chess—and the adventure

THE RUIN OF THE DIGITAL TOWN SQUARE

- The Inescapable Town Square 47
L. M. Sacasas on how social media combines the worst parts of past eras of communication
- Preserving Real-Life Childhood 54
Naomi Schaefer Riley on why decency online requires raising kids who know life offline
- How Not to Regulate Social Media 58
Shoshana Weissmann on proposed privacy and bot laws that would do more harm than good
- The Four Facebooks 65
Nolen Gertz on misinformation, manipulation, dependency, and distraction
- Do You Know Who Your 'Friends' Are? 71
Ashley May on why treating others well online requires defining our relationships
- The Distance Between Us 74
Micah Meadowcroft on why we act badly when we don't speak face-to-face
- The Emergent Order of Twitter 80
Andy Smarick on why the platform should be fixed from the bottom up, not the top down
- Imagine All the People 84
James Poulos on how the fantasies of the TV era created the disaster of social media
- Making Friends of Trolls 91
Caitrin Keiper on finding familiar faces behind the black mirror
-